

At BearingPoint we don't look for 'cookie cutter' consultants. We look for high performing consultants that combine multiple skillsets that help address the challenges organizations face. The Innovations in Operations team combines a focus on operations (operations management, operational excellence) with a strong point of view on innovation and innovation management (new technologies, new business models) coupled with the transformation skills to make it happen. Where do you fit?

Leonard Dam, Manager

'Lean and change management expert'

"A strong base in Lean and change management allow me to help organizations develop their own Operational Excellence capability and realize long-lasting improvements."

David Bergma, Senior Manager

'Business architect and transformation expert'

"My experience and engagements are in designing high performing organizations and in realizing successful transformations."

'Developing and rolling out a company-wide and organization specific Operational Excellence approach'

'Designing the centralized service desk organization and processes for a leading international mobility company'

Axel Visser, Senior Manager

'Operations and Supply chain mgmt. expert'

"I bring a strong technology perspective on helping organizations move their operations and supply chain management to the next level."

'Defining a supply chain strategy and transformation approach for a global mail, parcel and e-commerce corporation'

